Algal Cultures And Phytoplankton Ecology

Phytoplankton / , f aɪ t ɒ s ' p l æ ŋ k t ə n / are the autotrophic (self-feeding) components of the plankton community and a key part of oceans, seas and freshwater basin ecosystems. The name comes from the Greek words φυτόν (phyton), meaning "plant", and πλαγκτός (planktos), meaning "wanderer" or "drifter". Most phytoplankton are too small to be individually seen with the ...

In January 2003, the US Environmental Protection Agency sponsored a "roundtable discussion" to develop a consensus on the relationship between eutrophication and harmful algal blooms (HABs), specifically targeting those relationships for which management actions may be appropriate.

Market Analysis. Aquaculture is an inhabitant in which fish farming is practiced in different cultures such as marine water, freshwater, and brackish water. Different species of fish are cultivated and harvested in an ideal condition through aquaculture. These fish are further profitable for different applications such as food industry, dietary supplement, and others.

A coccolithophore (or coccolithophorid, from the adjective) is a unicellular, eukaryotic phytoplankton (). They belong either to the kingdom Protista, according to Robert Whittaker's Five kingdom classification, or clade Hacrobia, according to the newer biological classification system. Within the Hacrobia, the coccolithophorids are in the phylum or division Haptophyta, class Prymnesiophyceae ...

1. Introduction. In aquatic ecosystems, the continual water flow provides a unique character that affects the phytoplankton growth. Decrease of discharge and flow velocity, for example, is known to lead freshwater bodies to eutrophication (Sabater et al., 2008). In China, algae bloom has occurred frequently in many tributaries of the Three Gorge Reservoir since its operation.

The glossary that follows assumes a definition of ecology--the study of interactions between organisms and their environment--much wider than what fits under the field's habitual statistical persona. Ecofeminism and ecopsychology are mentioned, for example, as are terms from organic gardening and permaculture.

Fishing Facts. The oceans have been fished for thousands of years and are an integral part of human society. Fish have been important to the world economy for all of these years, starting with the Viking trade of cod and then continuing with fisheries like those found in Lofoten, Europe, Italy, Portugal, Spain and India.

Although traditional or staple crops can be produced from water bodies and in many situations traditional people often harnessed these resources, the aquatic habitat has been considered too costly and too difficult to farm other than for extremely high value crops such as algae harvested for high value materials such as β-carotene or essential long-chain fatty acids.
