In Dublin city and its suburbs, a system of postal districts was introduced in 1917 by the Royal Mail with the prefix "D", and retained after Ireland became an independent country, without the prefix. However the use of district numbers by the public did not begin until 1961, when street signs displayed postal district numbers. Prior to that time, street signs only displayed the street name in ...

In steep channels, sediment supply is low and episodic, and mainly generated by slope processes such as land-sliding. The contribution of slope-derived materials results in smaller watercourses having the highest substratum diversity in the river network (). As slope decreases and sediment supply increases, the channel morphology transitions into step-pool and plane bed channel types.
